

TURNING THE CITY AROUND

The ups and downs and problems faced by the Urban Coalition in its mission undertaken after the April 1968 riots will be discussed by President Frank Rich at the March 30 meeting of the Foggy Bottom Association.

Mr. Rich, President of Rich's Shoe Stores, emerged from the looting suffered by so many merchants a couple of years ago, determined that energetic commitment, rather than escape, was the path to a better future. Taking over as President of the well-meaning, but floundering, Urban Coalition, he has worked hard at healing the city's wounds. One of the programs of the Urban Coalition is "Project Progress", a group of street leaders—mostly ex-convicts—who help inner city youth go straight. Frank Rich was instrumental in convincing the Board of Trade to donate $75,000 to open ten youth "Leadership Centers" staffed by Project Progress.

Come and hear this dynamic, committed Washington businessman on some of the problems and answers in making our city livable for all its citizens. Time is 7:45 p.m. at Pillsbury Hall, 2430 K Street, N.W., on March 30.

VICTIM OF WRECKERS

The first sign was the removal of the pay telephone booth last week—but I still didn't catch on to what was happening. This morning, however, as I emerged from the walkway under the Freeway at 26th Street, I saw white clouds of dust floating through the air. A red and yellow steam shovel was busily wrecking the brown and green stucco house next to the former D & W Market. Then I realized they were also tearing down Bill and Irving's store. I altered my route and walked north to avoid getting covered with cement dust which was thick in the air.

Bill and Irving have been gone from the neighborhood for several months now, and they are sorely missed by many Foggy Bottom residents. I was reminded of the mornings when I used to wave to Irving through the window on my way to work. One could buy all manner of imported delicacies and choice meats at this market. I wonder if they will make the site into a beautiful parking lot.... Wouldn't it be nice if we had our own Foggy Bottom Zoning Committee?

One of the surest signs of spring is the gleam of white sails on the reflecting basin below the Lincoln Memorial. The "heeling over" clippers with man-high masts are those of the Capital R C'ers (Capital Radio Controllers). The skippers of the radio controlled sail boats meet at 8:30 pm of the 2nd Wed. of each month in the Sunday school rooms of St. Mary's Episcopal Church at 730 23rd St., N.W. Models are shown; their construction is discussed and visitors are welcome. Further information may be obtained from John H. Stockton. Phone JO 2-3678.

WHAT THE ATMOSPHERE WILL DO TO ME,
BUT WHAT WILL I DO TO THE ATMOSPHERE

It is becoming clear that there are many ways of reducing pollution. Those chimneys that fill the air with fumes which sting our eyes, make our noses run and sear our lungs; those cars that poison us with carbon monoxide and deadly lead; all these are subject to human control.

Do we wish to control them? And, if so, how urgently do we wish to? Government appears to be considering ways to reduce pollutants in air, water and on land. But there are limits to the reduction which can be made, for example, in the noxious gases produced by the generation of electricity and the operation of cars. What more can be done? This is where you and I can act. There ARE some things we can do. Regarding electricity, do not use more than the amount required, turn off lights not needed (even if the bill doesn't have to be paid by you); turn off radio and TV unless you are giving it your attention; if you are a car owner, use the car as economically as possible, especially in the city. Ask yourself, "Is this trip

BYE LINE

Marshalltown, Iowa, is noted for being the hometown of a number of creative people - movie actress Jean Seberg, writer Merle Miller, newspaper editor Robert Anderson, among others.

Bob grew up there and worked part time in his father's sign making business. Thus began a continuing talent in graphics, design, art and other crafts that seems to have taken hold and just won't let go. Pursuing this interest, he graduated from the Minneapolis School of Art and opened his own commercial photography shop. Just as the business was reaching the height of its success, in the late 1950's, he suffered a detached retina and for a time went almost totally blind. After one unsuccessful operation, another at the Eye and Ear Infirmary of Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston restored partial vision. Searching for some new creative and professional avenues, Bob learned of an experimental government-sponsored intensive Russian language learning project for blind students. He passed the demanding requirements, which included language aptitude, and was one of 15 people chosen for the pilot project. In 1960 he moved to Washington to enter the program at Georgetown University.

After working two years as a Russian language research analyst for CIA, Bob decided to apply his language credits toward a degree and is about 25 credits from a BS at George Washington University on a parttime basis. In the summer of 1965 he studied Russian at Moscow State University.

In the fall of 1967 he became assistant manager of the Washington Circle Building (2430 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.) and soon thereafter joined the Foggy Bottom Association; in November 1968 he became editor of the Foggy Bottom News, thus giving him the opportunity to renew his skill in graphics, and also to exercise a new interest in writing.

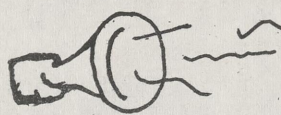

Performing his civic duties at the Foggy Bottom Association May 1969 Fiesta, Bob befriended a newcomer to Foggy Bottom's Jefferson House, blonde, pixyish Barbara Beck, of the Smithsonian Vertebrate Zoology Department, and, taking his civic duties seriously, he married her during the summer.

The Andersons have recently moved to 1914 Connecticut Avenue N.W., where Bob manages the Highlands apartment building. He serves as an assistant leader of a local Boy Scout troop, and together they participate in activities of Foundry Methodist Church, tutor in Russian (he) and German (she), and have completed a Masters in Parenthood certificate in the classes for expectant parents held at the Columbia Hospital for Women.

With this issue, Bob writes "30" to his editorship of the Foggy Bottom News. Devoted fans are urged to watch for copies of the newsletter of the Kalorama Citizens Association, which, it is learned from informed sources, may soon receive an infusion of new blood.

With this issue I officially retire as editor of Foggy Bottom's Greatest Newspaper nee Print Telephone. No activity of immediate recall have I enjoyed so much, along with the tearings of my hair at missed deadlines and with the occasional rufflings of inter-staff personalities. The capacity for shooting off my mouth in print has provided a socially acceptable outlet for my aggressions, for which "upwithputting" I am grateful to the Association officers and to the community. The policy of the paper during my months has been to make people aware, whether it be of problems, of others, of iniquities, of selves, of human frailties, - or of my ego. And I hope we all had some fun. If the paper has flourished during the past year, it is because I have had the time to devote to executing some of my ideas and to inducing others to contribute their talents. "Many hands make light work." As John Donne would say, "The wind has blown a chunk of Foggy Bottom to Kalorama," yet I would say, "Part of that chunk will always remain in the Bottom."

necessary?" And next time you buy a car, get one with less horsepower. (The greater the horsepower, the greater the pollution.) You will do your pocketbook and your lungs a favor.

And about reducing the mountains of trash, begin asking your grocer to have the soft drinks and beer salesmen provide old-fashioned deposit bottles. It will save your money and reduce the amount of trash to be disposed of as well as the amount of smoke pollution resulting from making the bottles which, once used, become trash.

The number of ways of reducing pollution are tremendous. This short list can be added to by the reader and more significant ones described. What the reduction of pollution may result in is a change in our ways of living--and the change may be not only beneficial, but pleasant as well.

TR'S LIVING MEMORIAL

"I hate a man who would skin the earth," said Theodore Roosevelt, a young, 42-year-old President girding to do battle with the lumbermen then ravaging our forests.

TR's living memorial, the forested 88-acre island in the Potomac directly opposite the Kennedy Center heightens our concern for our unprotected parks of the Nation's memorials to Washington, Jefferson and Roosevelt.

From Foggy Bottom access to TR Island may be had via the pedestrian walk of Roosevelt bridge just south of the Kennedy Center, or by car, also via Roosevelt bridge, bearing right down to George Washington Memorial Parkway and the Island parking area immediately ahead.

The following description from the Park Service natural history of the island abounds in mental pictures that delight — such a contrast to the horrors that beset the parks along Independence Avenue:

Natural History of the Island

Three major biological communities—swamp, marsh, and upland forest—provide a refuge for a variety of native plants and animals. The island is a wild vignette near the heart of metropolitan Washington, D.C.

Cattails, arrowhead, and pickerelweed in the marsh areas provide the habitat for marsh wrens, redwinged blackbirds, and kingfishers. Turtles, frogs, and muskrats abound in the waters below. Willow, ash, and maple trees root on the mudflats and create the swamp environment favored by the racoon in his search for crayfish. The higher central spine of the island forms the upland forest with its characteristic elms, tulip trees, red maples, and oaks. Downy woodpeckers, chickadees, and wood thrushes share the treetops with gray squirrels, while cottontails and chipmunks find a haven on the forest floor below; red and gray foxes also have been known to inhabit the island.

The plants and animals, protected by law, may be observed in their natural environs on 2-1/2 miles of foot trails.

AUFERSTEHUNG

Wenn im Laufe einer kurzen Stunde die Sonne lacht und gleich darauf der Himmel weint, wenn es erfrischend aus den Wolken niederprasselt und gleich darauf die Sonne scheint, wenn alles treibt und grünt und blüht,
um weiter stets sich fortzupflanzen,
wenn an des Teiches Rand vom Baum aufs Wasser Kirschenblüten niedertanzen, wenn junges Gras und junger Wald liebkoset wird
von leichtem Wind,
wenn Tiere sich zusammenfinden,
um das zu bleiben, was sie sind,
wenn Rehe scheu dem Menschen aus des Winters Nahe gehen,
wenn sie mit würdevoll erhobnem Haupt
im Wald nach einem Partner spahen, wenn sich die Raupe, eh' sie Falter wird, am Zweige auf und nieder windet, wenn eine Sehnsucht selbst das stillste Menschensein

entzündet:
dann senkt aus unbegreiflich blauem Aether die Allmacht Gottes sich auf seine ganze Schöpfung nieder,
dann hauchet sie erlosend stark ihr frischen Atem, neue Kräfte ein,
dann wacht die Wärme auf, die stillgeahnte,
dann freut der Mensch sich, Mensch zu sein.
Dann tönen Glocken hell und feierlich von Kirchentürmen,
noch und wieder, nah und weit,
dann fliegt ein jedes Herz dem jungen Lenz entgegen, erfasst vom Sinn der Auferstehung und der Osterzeit.

MASS IN YOUR APARTMENT? Why Not? . . .

Following up quickly on the recent endorsement by Cardinal O'Boyle of the concept of Masses celebrated in private dwellings, St. Stephen Martyr Church announced last month that it would initiate this service in the parish to foster a greater community spirit.

Any parishioner, therefore, who would like to bring together friends and neighbors for a Mass in his house or apartment may request this service.

A pleasant walk around the "Bottom" in a spring-like day is one of the pleasures of living in this urban area which is not urban. You can almost hear the house residents planning what to have in their gardens after the crocuses and snowdrops have led the way. There is always the struggle with the makings-of-man in the form of litter of various kinds and it is a visual jolt to come upon a well-cared-for garden flanked by two with ground and fence-corners covered with the trash of a week or two of accumulation. Our poet, Robert Frost, said in "Mending Wall", "Good fences make good neighbors." Had he lived in Foggy Bottom he might well have said, "Clean fences make good neighborhoods" or, at least, make them better.

The institutions in our part of town may have to try a little harder to keep pace with the householder in neatness of grounds. The parking lots of George Washington University from H to the Circle and 23rd to 24th and New Hampshire Avenue much resemble a collage assembled by the permanent residents of St. Elizabeth's, while the grounds and sidewalk of the Immaculate Conception Academy at 24th and K are a perpetual advertisement for varieties of pop bottles, candy, and chewing gum despite the fact that the District has thoughtfully placed a public trash receptacle in front of the school. Let's hope these two institutions read this short column and begin to emulate the high standards set by the other inhabitants of this delightful river bottom.

Semi-elation over the half-a-loaf freeway system supported by the D. C. City Council was turned to dismay by Mr. Volpe's recommendations. Of course, the blatantly pro-freeway D. C. newspapers, who certainly know better, dutifully reported the DOT publicity blurb: "Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe today expressed general agreement with the recommendations of the D. C. Government on freeway construction in the Nation's Capital." Let's look at the facts!

Let's compare the South Leg (SL), North Leg (NL) and North Central Freeway (NCF) proposals of the D. C. Department of Highways (DH), D. C. City Council (CC), and the Secretary of Transportation (SOT).

SL DH two tunnels connected by a trench
CC one tunnel, no trench
SOT one tunnel, no trench
NL DH 18 month restudy of routes between K and U
CC 4-lane under E or K or L and M
SOT 18 month restudy not confined to K or L & M designed to serve "traffic needs" (8 lanes) PLUS possible E St Exp to relieve downtown congestion.
NCF DH B&O line from R. I. Ave. to Silver Spring with I-95 splitting off at Fort Totten. N. Y. Ave. Freeway as an alternate but not recommended.
CC N. Y. Ave. Freeway, no NCF

SOT NCF recommended but so inadequate that N. Y. Ave. Freeway also needed, 16 month study To recap, the D. C. Gov't and the Secretary came to "general agreement" on the South Leg but on the longer and more critical North Leg and North Central Freeway Mr. Volpe's plans are worse than those of the Dept. of Highways!

Three things are clear, that Highway Lobby greed continues to transcend all human values and all the earthly wisdom that rules these roads absurd; that all the big talk about saving the human race from environmental suicide is just talk; and that the local press, though much given to defending its prerogatives, is the willing tool of the plundering highwayman.

WILLIAM BUCHANAN

LAST MONTH'S MEETING

The February meeting of the Foggy Bottom Association did not have a featured speaker, but consisted of reports on various subjects of interest to the membership.

A tape recording of an interview of Edward Bennett Williams by Joseph McCaffrey of ABC was played, giving Williams' views on crime in the capital. Among his suggestions to remedy the situation: more policemen; revision of the criminal justice system; swifter punishment, and improvement of prisons.

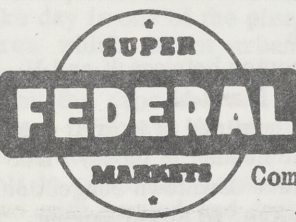

Lt. Lockwood of the Second District answered questions about the redistricting of the police precincts.

Mrs. Bettie Randall, chairman of the Washington Chapter of the Medical Committee for Human Rights (MCHR), urged that citizens take an interest in the appointment of a new director of the D.C. Health Department. Mrs. Randall pointed out the many areas of our daily lives that are affected by the competence of the city's health services. MCHR has asked Mayor Walter Washington to appoint a qualified selection committee to come up with the best possible nominee.

William Buchanan discussed the recent freeway hearings before the D.C. City Council, which culminated in the Council's decision on February 17 to recommend limiting freeway construction in the District.

President Alfred Cottrell appointed a nominating committee consisting of Charles Schoeneman, chairman, the Rev. Richard Martin, Rufus Lisle and Leslie Wilder to draw up a slate of candidates for 1970-71 offices, to be voted on at the June meeting.
